FIRE-PROOF CONSTRUCTION.—FOX and BARRETT'S PATENT.—The great importance of fire-proof construction is shown by the recently published returns of fires in London during the past year, by which it appears that there is a considerable increase as compared with former years, the number annually exceeding 1,000, or an average of three per day.

This result affords strong corroboration of a fact stated upon high authority, THAT NO BUILDING IN WHICH TIMBER JOISTS ARE USED IS PRACTICALLY SECURE FROM THE DANGER OF FIRE; and when to this fact it is added that timber is also liable to dry rot and the ravages of insects and vermin, for which it affords a ready harbour, the mischief arising from its extensive use will be sufficiently apparent.

It becomes, then, worth the attention of those who are interested in building, to inquire whether materials of an imperishable nature cannot be substituted for timber in the construction of floors, &c. without involving additional cost; and attention is invited to a number of buildings of all classes, either finished or in course of erection, upon the above improved system, in which joists, either of rolled or cast-iron, are substituted for timber, together with a solid superstructure of concrete, adapted to receive a finished surface of floor or roof of any kind.

Among the buildings at present in progress in London on this system is the new GUY'S HOSPITAL, the extensive range providing accommodation for 300 additional beds; and for buildings of this description and magnitude, as well as for PRIVATE DWELLING-HOUSES, OFFICES, WAREHOUSES, &c. it possesses very great advantages.

A detailed description of the system, estimates, and all further information, may be obtained on application to the Proprietors of the patent.

Mr. BARRETT (late Fox and Barrett),
12, York-buildings, Adelphi, whose offices form part of a building erected on this principle, and where specimens of the rolled iron joists may be seen.
